

Before It's Over Scenarios

Instructions: Share how you would respond to each of the following scenarios with the other members of your small group.

Scenario #1

Suppose you came home and found your house on fire, and you only had time to save three things. Assuming family members and pets are all out safely, what three things would you save and why?

Scenario #2

Suppose you went to the doctor and found out you only had one month to live, besides being with loved ones, what three things would you like to do before dying, and why?

Scenario #3

Suppose your best friend forever is moving away to another country in one week. You may not see each other again for a long time. What three things would you definitely want to say to your friend before he or she leaves, and why?

Scenario #4

Suppose something way beyond your control came up and you had to give up some things in your life. From the list below, what would be the three hardest things for you to give up and what would be the three easiest, and why?

- _____ Material Possessions (my car, home, nice clothes)
- _____ Health (my physical strength and energy)
- _____ Self-esteem (my self-worth)
- _____ Your reputation (my popularity and respect)
- _____ Political freedom (fair government, right to vote)
- _____ Religious freedom (my right to worship God, free from persecution)
- _____ Family (my parents, grandparents, siblings)
- _____ Good Job (my career desires, earning a good living)
- _____ Friends (my close friends)
- _____ Faith (my faith and trust in God)
